BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Balfour Gets After O'Brien and Others of that lik-Parnell's Amendment Rejected.

In the Commons.

LONDON, February 17 .- in the Commous this evening Balfour resumed the THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. debate on the address in reply to the Queen's speech. He commented upon the vehement character o O'Brien's remarks last evening, and said it was nothing but what he was accustomed to from the same quarter. He consoled himself with the reflection that attacks of even worse character had been made against O'Brien's present allies. United Ireland had compared Trevellyan to a skunk, cuttle fish and hangman.
O Brien had likewise drawn a comparison between Gladstone and Judas Iscariot, and for continuous weeks the sited treland more than instnuated that Trevellyan and Earl Spencer con-spired to shield men guilty of the most norrible and nameless crimes.

O'Brien-I stated that the result of O'brien—I stated that the result of the ir misguided action was to shield those persons, but I never alleged they id so wilfully. Balfour said he would refer to timited Ireland to prove his statements; but in reply to cries of "quote, quote." said ne would never think of saillying his lips by repeating such language as has been used. He denied in tolo the allegation that Earl Carnaryon favored the Dublin Parliament and von favored the Dublin Parliament and ope, ed negonations with Parnell with the knowledge of Sali-bury. Proceeding to compare the crimes act of 1882 and to compare the crimes act of 1882 and 1887, Bufour maintained the latter did not, while the former did, create new crimes. O'Brien had possted that his advocated that his advocated with the public opinion in concluding had saved the people from who esale eviction. Government action, Ball or desired, had been modified by Balfour declared, had been modified by ballour, referring to the imprison-ment of members of the House, twitted trevellyan with making a weak remark to the effect that it was a sickening thing or members of Parliament to be im-prisoned. It was a solening thing they should deserve it, said Balfour, and it would be much worse if the government had given leading violators of the law special privileges to defy it with childish fuss made over their prison clo hes. Complaint had been made of the letter he wrote during O'Brien's imprison-ment. All it stated, he said, was that O'Brien was suffering from weak lungs and was of an excitable disposition. Re-garding the alleged tortures in prisons. garding the alleged tortures in prisons, in requested the prison inspectors to make special inquiry, with the resultant report, showing it utterly unitue. As a matter of fact, O'Brien's health improved in prison. (Hear, hear.) He was two pounds heavier when he left than when he went in.

O'Brien—That is inaccurate; I was five pounds lighter.

Forming to the operation of theorimes act, Ballour contended that the condition of Ireland was immensely improved, compared with the period of the Gladstone government. What a

Who, a short time ago, would suppose a single man on the opposition bench would advocate forcible resistance to the police? He was pained at the progress of digradation in the Liberal Party, the members of which now rose to the bestels of indignation only when l'arty, the members of which now rose to the height of indignation only when denouncing judges, magistrates and police, who, under great difficulties, stood between society in Ireland and utter ruin, and fearlessly executed their duty, and they had their reward in the respect and admiration of every true friend of liberty and order. (Prolonged cheering) cheering )

Mr. Gladstone followed Balfour. He found little in the chief secretary's speech that tended to assist them in getting at the truth of the question before the House. There was a question whether the Conservative leaders had subject of home rule. The denials made by Ba-four did not get rid of the Irish members assertions. Parnell had stated that he had found himself in entire agreement with Lord Carnaryon on the home rule question. That had not been denied.

Balfour, interposing, said the letter from Carnaryon clearly implied that he did not express an opinion upon home

Gladstone replied that Carnarvon had never explicitly denied Parnell's statement. Continuing, he said Liberals were called separatists, because they wished to give effect to the national aspirations of Ireland, while having supreme regard for the unity of the empire. Some remarks of Balfour, Gladstone said, apparently had been levelled at himself. His (Gladstone's) Nottingham speech had been absolutely misrepresented as to the statement regarding the Irish executive practice of obtaining information by permitting the price to concoct crime. He protested then as now against the practice as dangerous to society and odious in itself. He had never uttered an expression over which he felt more rejuiced than his words at Mitchellstown. He used them for the sake of preventing enormous mischief and suffering, probably Mandshad. It Gladstone replied that Carnaryon Mitchellstown. He used them for the sake of preventing enorrous mischief and suffering, probably bloodshed. It was agents of the law that were breakers of the law at Mitchellstown. It was cruel, wanton, disgraceful bloodshed, almost without example. Belfour had become by implication a breaker of the law, for he gave the act his authoritative approval, as if it were to be a model rule for the conduct of the police. Glastone declined to accept as authentic the government statistics of Mining, Milling,

Smelting Machinery and all sizes of Chilled Wheels for Mining Purposes. Railroad, Printing Press,
